SCÉNIC VISION FEATURED IN SUCCESSFUL DETECTIVE SERIES "BODIES" ON NETFLIX

- The new Netflix series "Bodies" features the Scénic Vision concept car as well as the Mégane E-Tech electric
- For the past two years, Renault has been engaged in a product placement programme targeting cinema, VOD platforms and television

The Scénic Vision featured in the new Netflix series "Bodies"

All eight episodes of Bodies – a British limited series based on a graphic novel written by Si Spencer – have been available to stream on Netflix since 19 October, already securing the show a spot on the "top 10 in Series in 72 countries on Netflix" list.

Grounded in the present with the Mégane E-Tech electric and thrust into the future with the Scénic Vision, Renault accompanies the detectives' investigations in the Whitechapel district of East London.

Meanwhile, back in real life, the All-new Scénic E-Tech electric will be on the roads much sooner than 2053. Unveiled on 4 September 2023 at the Munich Motor Show (press kit link), this vehicle will go on sale in the first half of 2024.

For the past two years, Renault has been pursuing an ambitious product placement programme showcasing the brand's new range. Our vehicles have appeared in several Netflix productions, such as Lost Bullet and Lupin.
